

eLocation - A Common Sense Alternative for Outsourcing

With data processing at a mission critical level, companies struggle with the predicament of whether to invest in their own data centers (Enterprise) and bear the costs of building a structure, equipping it with advanced technology and staffing it with skilled personnel or outsourcing their operations and perhaps giving up control and security (Colocation). Under the guidance of iFortress, an innovation leader, the next generation of Information and Technology Exchanges (iTX), iFortress' iTX, offers a viable alternative for efficiently and effectively managing data center operations.

iFortress' iTX is an adaptable, location independent iTX that uses the iFortress system of interlocking panels and pre-engineered turnkey solutions to enable the creation of highly secure, process ready appliances that can be located virtually anywhere in proximity to a business including parking lots, rooftops and brownfields or indoors in warehouses, offices and underground spaces. iFortress has taken this concept to the next level with the introduction of eLocation™.

Accessibility, security or environmental elements no longer restrict location options. Any site previously thought unsuitable or too challenging can now be revenue generating or productive real estate.

iFortress' iTX can make any location a viable option to outsource IT operations.

eLocation™ lets you run your IT operation as an outsourced “On-premise” solution allowing you to:

- Maintain on-site control of your iTX
- Reduce infrastructure, personnel and equipment costs
- Benefit from the expertise of an IT industry leader
- Direct your focus back on your business and off of IT management

If you decide that eLocation meets your business needs, iFortress will conduct a site assessment and assemble an iTX to your requirements and specifications at your preferred location. From that point on, iFortress will provide management and maintenance services for you as an outsourced IT operation while the vital assets are still within your reach.
